

■ Barbara Taylor Bradford

'I'll be staying at home in my 47th-floor Manhattan apartment,' says Barbara. 'There are three books that I'm keen to read. Sunday Morning by Ray Connolly, which begins in the Sixties in Fleet Street – I think it'll make me feel very nostalgic for England. Tandia by Bryce Courtenay, which is set mostly in South Africa and is the sequel to another wonderful book called The Power Of One. Then I must get round to reading Double Cross by Sam and Chuck Giancana. It's the chilling true account of Mafia boss Sam Giancana's life, including his contacts with the CIA and the Kennedys.

● Sunday Morning (Bantam Press, £14.99, hardback). Tandia (Heinemann, £4.99, paperback). Double Cross (Macdonald, £16.99, hardback).

● Barbara Taylor Bradford's latest bestseller is Remember (Grafton, £4.99, paperback).
